~~Behind~~ Passing the law of the graduated drivers License was a great idea. Students should be required to have a License that is restricted when they first start driving. There are more reasons of why students should have it then there are reasons of why students should not have it. Graduated Licenses gives students more time to learn behind the wheel, ~~gives~~ teaches students responsibility, and it also decreases the rate of car wrecks due to teendrivers.

One reason why students or a teen should be required to have a restricted License is because it decreases car crashes by teens. Car crash rates were very high in the teen section before this law was passed. Records show of a major decrease in car crash rates made by teens after this law was passed. This law starts teens out, driving with a parent at age 15. This gives teenagers a chance to be familar with his or her car and teaches them responsibility behind the wheel while being supervised by a parent telling them what they should and should not do.

Graduated Licenses not only teaches teenagers about how to drive, but also how to be responsible behind the wheel. After a teen has no wrecks or any sort of a bad record of driving, at the age of 16 he or she can get an intermediate License. This License lets teen drivers drive by themself but restricts the teen's hours of driving and limits the number of people allowed in the car. These restrictions gives new beginning drivers a change to drive by themself without having so many distractions causing them to have a wreck.

One more reason of why ~~of~~ teenagers need the graduated License is that it Limits the hours of driving and the number of people in a car. These restrictions help the new driver. ~~Teens~~ A lot of teenagers do not like these restrictions but what they do not know is that it keeps them safe and gives them a lesser chance of being killed in a car wreck. The restrictions include having your seatbelt on at all times, limits the number of friends or people in a car, and restricts the number of hours allowed to drive. A teen is allowed to drive until 11:00 p.m and can only have so many people in a car while driving without an adult and this gives the driver less distractions to worry about and lets them be able to drive cautiously.

In conclusion, the graduated License is a great law to be passed because it helps more than it hurts. It lets new beginning drivers become more responsible behind the wheel and decreases car wrecks. It has made a big difference and has saved many lives.
