

SEARCHING AND VIEWING ARCHIVED TENNESSEE STATE GOVERNMENT WEBSITES

From the list of Tennessee State Government Websites, you can select to view the live websites, search through the archived versions of the sites, or view archives of the websites and their content as they appeared on the dates archived.

Searching Archived Websites:

To search the content of the archived websites, click the “Search content of archived sites” link below each State Government Website. This will take you outside of the State website to our collections hosted by the Archive-It service. Their search allows you to search the archived websites by keyword terms or to select "Advanced Search" to perform more precise searches. Archive-It also provide a useful "Help" link on their “Advanced Search” page to aid you in your searching.

Viewing Archived Websites:

The full archived websites are available through the date links listed below each agency. These links take you outside of the State website and to the Archive-It service. Once a date range is selected, you may select a specific date to view the website as it was archived on that date. You can browse through the archived websites for reports, newsletters, and other government publications as they existed on the date the site was archived.

Note:

Some website features are difficult to archive and will not function properly. These include interactive features such as searches or dropdown menu selections. Also note that only the particular site listed is archived. If that site has a link to another site, that link will usually not work because it was not archived. For example, an archived version of the Tennessee Department of Transportation website has a link to the Mississippi Department of Transportation. The Mississippi link will not work from our archived site. However, these links will work when viewing the Live Site.
