

Lynette Porter is the Deputy Director of the Tennessee Council on Developmental Disabilities, an office of State government that works to ensure that people with disabilities and their families have a voice in the public policies that impact their lives. She considers it her daily privilege at the Council to work with other public and private entities to build their capacity to include people with disabilities in all aspects of community life. Her passion as a parent-advocate for her daughter with a physical disability led her to the Council in June of 2000.

Porter is committed to growing excellent leadership in State government, and as a result of her efforts, she was appointed in 2013 to the inaugural Tennessee Government Leadership Council. Lynette is a graduate of Middle Tennessee State University and a native Tennessean.
