

The Nature Conservancy in Tennessee

The Tennessee Chapter of The Nature Conservancy is the largest and most effective conservation organization in the state. From the bottomlands of West Tennessee's rivers, across the rolling hills of Middle Tennessee, to the high-elevation forests of the Smokies, we have protected more than 300,000 acres. Along the way, we have also helped create and significantly expand 29 State Natural Areas, 10 State Wildlife Management Areas, and 2 National Wildlife Refuges. We have helped to protect such treasured Tennessee places as the Walls of Jericho, Radnor Lake, Savage Gulf, Roan Mountain, and the Tennessee River Gorge. If you would like to find out more about our work, please visit www.nature.org/tennessee